

How To Write Safelist Subject Lines:

Creating Safelist Ads That Get A High Response

The subject line of your safelist ad is the most important part. The reason for this is very simple. If your subject line isn't good, then your ad will never be opened! You could spend lots of time crafting a great sales letter that would get a very high response, but if no one ever opens your ad, then your well crafted letter is just internet waste.

The Safelist Users Manual points out that to make a good subject line, you must create one that stands out! It must grab a person's attention.

Below is a list of subject lines that appeared in my inbox. I have inserted one subject line myself. This subject line was created using a method that is explained in the Safelist Users Manual. Look through the list below to see which it is.

It is clear that the most obvious subject line is Free Online Marketing Training. The reason is simple. When you skim down through the subject lines it is the only one that is indented.

The authors of the other subject lines tried to use letters in big caps to get your attention, or !!!, but the problem is everyone else does the same thing. Instead of doing what everyone else does, trying to make their subject line stand out, you can literally make it stick out by using a very simple indentation.

By using this technique you can make sure your subject line stands out in a crowd, but this alone isn't enough to make people open your ads.

Your subject lines also have to make people want to open and read your email!
